About

Accommodating members from other clubs is a time-honored custom among member-only clubs. When a club conducts tournaments or intensive course maintenance, neighbor clubs extend this courtesy knowing the favor will be returned. Because club golfers are frequent travelers interested in course design and new playing experiences, arrangements made by a member's home club golf professional has helped serve those wishes. But accommodations at other clubs, while a simple custom on its face, have typically been complicated to arrange and carry out - and often go under-utilized. Clubs that partner with OpenRounds take advantage of its digital platform, streamlining access to playing opportunities and further extending the private club experience.
